Basic Law Enforcement Training at JSCC

KENANSVILLE, North Carolina December 3, 2012 – James Sprunt Community College will be starting a daytime Basic Law Enforcement Training (BLET) course beginning Monday, February 4, 2013. Students will complete 624 hours of training and take the State Exam on June 14, 2013.

Students applying to the BLET program must be U.S. citizens, must be 20 years of age or obtain a waiver from the director of the N.C. Criminal Justice Standards Division, must have a valid North Carolina driver’s license, must pass a medical physical exam, must have a clean criminal record (minor violations only), and must obtain a sponsorship from a N.C. law enforcement agency. Students with sponsorship from a N.C. law enforcement agency will have their tuition waived for the course.

The BLET course is a pre-requisite for law enforcement officer certification. The course is designed to equip the student with the basic skills, knowledge and ability to function as an entry level law enforcement officer in the State of North Carolina with state, county, and municipal governments or with private businesses.

Seating is limited for the BLET class. Students should request a BLET packet as soon as possible in order to have time to fill out their application, complete background checks, obtain a medical physical exam, complete sponsorship and other forms, and schedule an interview with the school director to secure a slot in the course. For more information or to secure a BLET packet, contact Brad Coats at 910-296-2533 or blcoats@jamessprunt.edu.
